APPENDIX A

Applicant directs the Examiner's attention to the attached RD&E Development Order Form, bearing a "Ship Date Assigned" of April 10, 1990, and a document entitled "Duncan Customer Service", bearing an "Ordered Date" of April 10, 1990. These two documents pertain to the sale of a film product from Applicant's assignee, W.R. Grace & Co. - CONN, to H.E. Butt Grocery Co. in San Antonio, Texas. The documents describe an event which involved the sale of about 1800 pounds of a multilayer barrier film containing a linear homogeneous ethylene/alpha-olefin copolymer in the seal layer.

The seal layer comprised the linear homogeneous ethylene/alpha-olefin copolymer in an amount of about 95 weight percent, based on the weight of the seal layer. The seal layer further comprised about 5 weight percent of an antiblock masterbatch, which comprised low density polyethylene in an amount of about 90 weight percent, based on the weight of the masterbatch.

The homogeneous ethylene/alpha-olefin copolymer was obtained from the Exxon Chemical Company, of Baytown Texas, and was identified as SLP-1-288 resin, a polymeric resin which, based on information and belief, comprised a linear polymer produced via metallocene-catalysis and which had a density of about 0.912 and a melt index of 3.5-4.5.

The barrier layer of the multilayer film comprised ethylene/vinyl alcohol copolymer, commonly referred to as "EVOH". The multilayer film also contained layers which comprised ethylene/vinyl acetate copolymer, and an outer abuse layer comprising high density polyethylene. Several of the film layers comprised ionomeric polymer, more specifically, sodium neutralized methacrylic acid. The multilayer film also contained a plurality of adhesive layers which contained anhydride-modified linear low density polyethylene.

The film had a thickness of about 6 mils, and is believed to have been used by the customer to package products using a vacuum skin packaging operation, which includes a thermoforming step. Following the packaging of certain meat products, the resulting packaged product was supposedly cooked in the package, i.e., underwent "cook-in".

Applicant requests that the above-described information be considered in the examination of the instant application, and that in the next Office Action the Examiner provide written acknowledgement of his/her review and consideration of the above two documents, together with this Appendix to the Information Disclosure Statement.
